ITALIAN TRADE FAIR EVENTS

The publication of the Italian Trade Fair Calendar of international exhibitions scheduled for 2009, which has been redeveloped with a new graphics layout to allow for a more efficient consultation, is the result of a proactive collaboration among the Coordination of the Regions, under the direction of the Council of Presidents of Italian Regions and has been made possible with assistance from the National Observatory and AEFI, the Association of Italian Trade Fairs and Exhibitions.

Although it has been created during a period of increasing global economic difficulty caused by the effects of the current international financial crisis, the 2009 calendar includes 200 exhibitions, distributed throughout all of the regions of Italy, and features 27 different product sectors. In the majority of cases, these exhibitions represent trade fair brands that are famous throughout the world, with dozens of years of experience, testifying to the in-depth experience and the increasing know-how offered by the organisers of these events, thereby placing our country in the second place position in Europe in the trade fair industry. The exhibitions will be organised and held at major exposition grounds – which feature modern services and equipment – located in or near attractive cities that are able to handle accommodations for the thousands of visitors and exhibitors, thereby making these experiences more pleasant overall.

Each year, participants at these international exhibitions are represented by approximately 110,000 exhibitors, more than 27% of which come from foreign countries, and approximately 13 million visitors, 7% of which come from abroad. 63% of exhibitors and 22% of visitors are involved in business trade fairs, 38% of visitors and 27% of exhibitors are instead involved in blended trade fairs, while 10% of exhibitors and 40% of visitors are involved in consumer trade fairs. The trend in Italy in recent years has been decidedly positive, and is expected to continue, while other countries have experienced significant difficulties in this industry. This confirms the quality of our nation's trade fair system, which represents an important resource for the Italian economy and a venue of extraordinary importance that provides a meeting place for the supply of products, services and technologies and the demand from an increasingly global marketplace.

Trade fairs represent one of the most traditional yet at the same time most sophisticated forms of commercial communications instruments available to businesses. In fact, for our nation's manufacturing companies, from a commercial standpoint, international trade fairs are the equivalent of the manufacturing districts that are used for production activities. In other words, trade fairs are the means by which Italian companies are able to carry out a concerted action that can attract global economic players.

Finally, thanks to their know-how, Italian trade fair centres have initiated an important internationalisation plan for new markets in Europe, the United States, Russia and China by organising dozens of exhibitions throughout the world.

This commitment to the Italian trade fair system has been made possible thanks to the initiative shown by new trade fair companies following a "reform" of our nation's traditional public trade fair organisations and is now being promoted by almost all of Italy's regions. However, it has also been influenced by increased attention to the specific needs of individual regions in relation to their current territorial situations, with significant investments that have been made for the improvement of trade fair grounds, promotional efforts aimed at guaranteeing and increasing the competitiveness of trade fair centres and exhibitions with respect to the systems that are offered by other nations, and by favouring and consolidating our presence in emerging trade fair markets. For this reason, it is necessary to once again highlight the urgent need for a new policy and the development of the Italian trade fair system, which must be coordinated between the national government (the Ministry of Economic Development, especially with regard to activities involving international trade) and the regions.

The commitment shown by the Coordination of the Regions with regard to the 2009 calendar centres around the request for and definition of a new industry agreement for the internationalisation of Italy's national trade fair system to be stipulated with the Ministry of Economic Development in order to continue to promote policies that will result in additional "incoming" events as well as reinforce our presence in foreign markets. Moreover, it is crucial that the government be committed to making the provisions for the qualification and certification of the trade fair system become reality by providing direct support for infrastructures in order to improve accessibility and develop our national trade fair system. These projects have been in the planning stage for several years, but have not been implemented to date. Therefore, this means we need to increase efforts to make our national trade fair system even stronger, including policies of collaboration and integration among the various European trade fair systems as a response to an international situation which, in 2009, will involve new and more difficult challenges in terms of the global economy and international trade.

Duccio Campagnoli

Councillor of the Emilia-Romagna Region
Inter-Regional Trade Fair Coordinator for the Regions and Autonomous Provinces Conference

Since the second half of 2008, the entire planet has been experiencing an economic crisis with a devastating impact; nevertheless, during this same year no major repercussions were reported in the trade fair industry: the "Italian Trade Fair System" has held out and has in fact, managed to react quickly and dynamically to this situation.

The global economic crisis, however, will certainly affect our industry in 2009, and perhaps even in 2010 as well. In order to face what has been defined as an economic "tsunami", likened to the Great Depression of 1929, the efforts, although extraordinary, of the players involved in the trade fair industry, first and foremost AEFI and its members, who in the pages that follow, present their trade fair offerings for the upcoming year, will not be enough to face the challenges that lie ahead.

It will certainly necessary for the Association of Italian Trade Fairs and Exhibitions and its members (not only the major trade fair grounds, but small and medium ones as well) to perform as a team in order to implement that critical mass that is appreciated the world over, continuing to focus on quality and excellence in exhibitions and consolidating the collaboration and cooperation of a system that has begun to make its presence known throughout the world in recent years. However, this will still not be sufficient to ride out the crashing wave caused by this crisis, which is expected to last for some time and impact all sectors of the economy, from manufacturing to services.

Therefore, AEFI plans to operate in accordance with the following two directives:

- internally: closer relationships with and among members will be required to provide a better rationalisation of the activities carried out, to verify hypotheses of economies of scale and shared objectives, to continue to focus on innovations in the processes used and the products offered, to facilitate the consolidation of the relationships between trade fair grounds and both regional and national territories, to improve the general level of services offered to our customers, to increase training standards for our human resources;
- externally: in this regard, AEFI is making provisions to:

- compel institutions (the Government and Parliament on the one hand and the Regions, on the other) to ensure a framework for interventions that would provide some general guidelines for the trade fair system with the implementation of an initial coordination at a central level to govern and protect competitiveness in compliance with applicable laws. We must present our petition to obtain programmed and continued support so that we can achieve some significant results in strategic and high-priority areas, including internationalisation, the consolidation of the role that trade fair system assumes in the Italian economy, a single collective contract for this industry, the coordination of a number of regional laws, the rationalisation of a variety of forms of incentives at the trade fairs (in terms of investments and management);

- continue to strengthen the centralised dialogue, which has been launched in recent months, among the major associations that operate in this sector, first of all CFI and CFT. If we are able to continue to strengthen our relationships and work together to achieve common goals, with respect for our own specific objectives, we will offer a comprehensive and concrete rationale for our national trade fair system, which employs thousands of people, which provides a significant contribution to Italy's gross national product, and also involves many of our nation's regions and cities, rendering this system capable of representing the best of Italy abroad and providing a stimulus for our nation's production (and its territories) as well as the internationalisation of businesses.

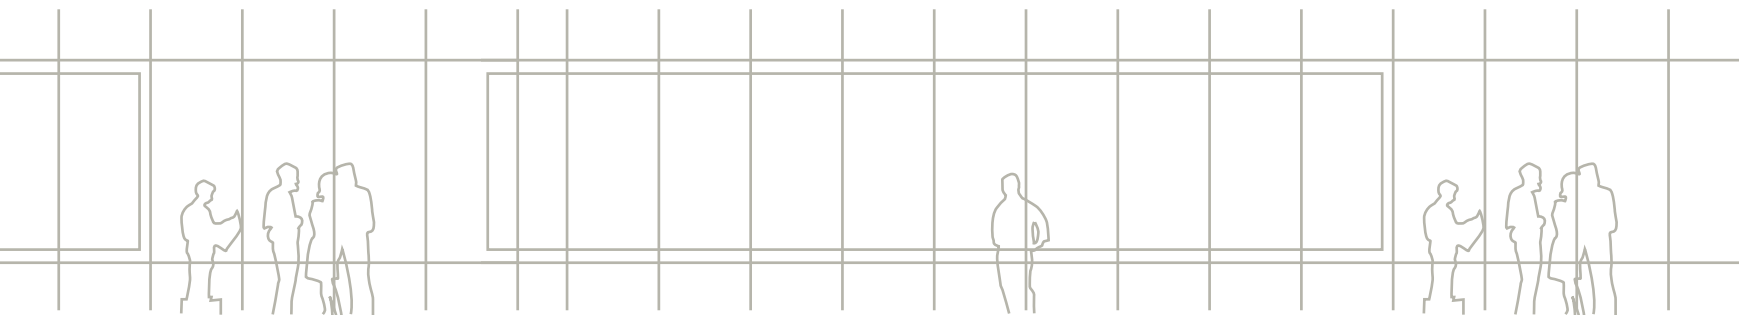

With these activities and these foundations, I am honoured to present the Trade Fair Calendar for 2009, which, as always, is rich with opportunities. AEFI will do everything possible to ensure that this calendar is respected and to prevent "defections" caused by the significant, ongoing global economic crisis in order to guarantee that the calendars for the upcoming years will continue to expand and improve.
